Discussion Summary

During our Zoom meeting, each team member shared their progress by screen-sharing and describing the functionalities they have coded. This provided a comprehensive overview of the current status of the project and allowed for constructive feedback and discussion. We went through each team member's work individually, offering critiques, comments, and suggestions for improvement where necessary. This process helped us identify any issues or errors encountered during development and facilitated collaborative problem-solving.

Overall, the meeting was productive in ensuring that everyone is on track and addressing any challenges effectively.
